Did God Do It?

After a dam of heaped-up slate gave way, loosing flood waters that wiped out several West Virginia mining communities, a reporter sought comment from the dam's owner, the Pittston Co. A high Pittston official in New York, asking not to be identified, said: "We're investigating the damage which was caused by the flood which we believe, of course, was an act of God." That means, he explained, that the dam built by the company was "incapable of holding the water which God poured into it."

That's what is known as passing the buck upstairs, and at last report, God had no immediate comment. We don't think, though, the hill people will blame Him. He's probably a lot closer to them than He is to that mining company official. Ronanoke (Va.) Times

Welfare Standard

Whether it can ever be drafted much less enacted, is hard to say, but welfare legislation of the type described by Sen. Strom Thurmond is what this country needs:

"A good welfare bill should provide assistance to the elderly, infirm, blind, and disabled. Provisions need to be made for little children who are orphaned or whose parents are incapacitated. These goals should be achieved by legislation that does not create a huge federal administrative bureaucracy and does not encourage able-bodied citizens to become welfare recipients." —Columbia (S.C.) Throw-Away Cars?

Anti-pollution measures due to take effect by 1976 will result in a new kind of car, a private consultant has told the federal government.

"They'll be 'throw-away' cars, he says. After as little as 10,000 to 15,000 miles, a new one will be required. So what else is new? We know a lot of people who've owned cars like that.—Charlotte (N.C.) News

Reports Cats and Cancer Unrelated

CLEARWATER BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Relax, you can't catch cancer from your cat, says Dr. Robert Schneider.

Schneider and his associates at a California laboratory are the only scientists in the world keeping track of tumors affecting household pets such as cats and dogs.

They cooperate with another laboratory which keeps tabs on cancers in humans so they can assess the chances of animals transmitting tumors to families with which they live.

About three years ago, a scientific study suggested humans might contract leukemia, a cancer of the blood, from cats suffering from a virus causing leukemia in the animals.

But, Schneider, a veterinarian, said his figures "show no evidence to incriminate cats in the occurrence of human leukemia." He spoke Wednesday to the closing session of an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers.

Schneider heads the Animal Neoplasia (cancer) Registry of Viral and Rickettsial Disease Laboratory of the California State Department of Public Health in Berkeley.

He told of studies looking for any association between cats with cancer or leukemia and humans in that cat's "family" with such diseases.

There was no excess of such cancers among people who owned sick cats nor was there any excess cancer in people whose dogs came down with cancers, Schneider said.

Some cats have a virus for leukemia. Veterinarians are exposed to more scratches from sick cats than most people, and if a cat virus could be transmitted through scratches, then the animal doctors should show signs of it in their blood, as in having antibodies against the virus, he said.

Blood tests of more than 700 persons, mostly veterinarians, found only one man having a temporary and very likely falsely positive blood test for the presence of any virus, he said.

Schneider said the cat studies indicate leukemia is transmitted strictly from parent to offspring, not between brother and sister. This finding "strengthens the probability that the disease is not transmitted to man or other species" by cats, he said.

Kiwanis Club Continues to Support Youth Programs

The Hope Kiwanis Club is in the process of making another very important contribution to the youth of Hope and the Parks & Recreation Department. The club has appropriated $1,900.00 for the purchase of a lighting system for the newly constructed softball field at Fair Park.

The City of Hope will in turn provide poles and labor proper installation of the new system. Hope High School Key Club, the youth counterpart of the Kiwanis Club, will be instrumental in constructing a concession stand at the softball field.

Other field improvements which will be added by the Parks & Recreation Department are new bleachers, fencing, and dugouts. In appreciation of the vital assistance the Kiwanis Club and Key Club are giving toward the improving of this new field, it will be dedicated as "Key Field."

Because of the new lighting and other improvements at this field, it will be available for additional uses. However, the girls softball teams and the Christian Athletic Association, for whom the field was initially constructed, will have priority. The Christian Athletic Association which should have approximately twelve teams in its league, will play two nights a week. The girls' softball program will be developed this year by way of sponsor fees. Sponsors will be obtained for the twelve teams, the money going for uniforms and equipment for each team.

Since the Little League has expanded this year to take in two more teams, the Doctors League will be forced to leave K-Park and play at Key Field. In addition to helping solve the Little League scheduling problem, this move will help meet a requirement set by the Kiwanis Club that over half the participants using Key Field must be young people of our community.

The people of Hope are greatly indebted to the Kiwanis Club for the youth-oriented projects they have undertaken. Appreciation can be shown by taking full advantage of the facilities which the club helps to provide and by attending the 29th annual Kiwanis Show to be held April 14 at 8:00 p.m. in the City Hall auditorium. It is through this fund raising event that the Kiwanians are able to give their invaluable monetary assistance to the betterment of our community.

Female Truckers Seek Hauls With the Men

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) —

Two petite female truck drivers have filed sex discrimination charges after a company ruling that prohibits single women from making long-distance hauls with men drivers.

"Ever since I was a little kid I wanted to drive a big truck," said Virginia Barnes, an attractive 35-year-old brunette. "They gave me a chance and then they took it away from me."

Mrs. Barnes and 48-year-old Pauline Blackburn have filed complaints with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission against Watkins Motor Lines Inc. of Lakeland.

The women complained after company officials decreed on March 1 that drivers of opposite sexes could not team up on trucks with sleeping quarters unless they were married.

"There is less chance of hanky, panky on the road than there would be in the trucking offices," scoffed Mrs. Blackburn, a pretty divorcee.

"I think I should be able to drive a truck because of my ability, not because I'm married," added Mrs. Barnes, a mother of two who is in the process of divorcing her husband.

Barney R. Brown, vice president of the Lakeland trucking firm, said that the ruling "had nothing to do with discrimination, it creates too much of a problem.

"The policy of Watkins Motor Lines is to have both male and female drivers," he said. "We do allow male drivers to drive together or single, and we do allow female drivers to drive together or single."

Watkins' personnel director Arthur Farr added that the company employs several husband-wife teams.

Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Blackburn, both under 5-foot-2 and 105 pounds, learned to drive the huge tractor-trailer rigs at a vocational school. They handled Watkins rigs for nearly three months before the company ruling.

Both women say they never asked for any special treatment from their male partners.

Mrs. Barnes said, "I got my blouse dirty and I got my hands dirty. When we unloaded 40,000 pounds of concentrate, I unloaded my share—half."

Takes More Than Money to Survive Megapolis

By LOUISE COOK
NEW YORK (AP) — It takes more than money to survive in the megapolis these days.

Urban living requires an unbreakable pair of rose-colored glasses and the ability to see a silver lining in every cloud.

Suppose, for example, there's a transit strike. The average man would grumble something about the traffic and complain about not being able to get to work.

Not the urbanite. A little simple reasoning—some might call it twisted logic—and the city dweller looks on the bright side: the extra exercise of walking is good for him, no buses means less pollution, the strike provides a built-in excuse for not visiting his mother-in-law in Brooklyn.

With a little practice, anyone anywhere can play the optimist's game.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers named five members of the Governor's Study Committee on Self Insurance Thursday.

The group was authorized by the 1971 legislature to study the feasibility of creating a self-insurance program on state-owned and public school property and risks.

Members of the committee are Dr. Roy B. Allen of the University of Arkansas, Dave L. Baker of Little Rock, Jack Hanna of De Queen, W.Q. Hall of Huntsville and R.N. Wade of Paris.

Bumpers asked the committee to report its findings and recommendations to him at least two months before the 1973 legislative session.

U.S. Budget Deficit Is Revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government economists say they are concerned because taxpayers are letting too much money be withheld from their paychecks. They fear the over-withholding will retard the nation's economic recovery.

New income tax withholding schedules that went into effect Jan. 16 are taking more money out of paychecks than before, and people are not adjusting their withholding exemptions to reduce the amount of money withheld.

The Treasury Department said Friday it is collecting about $1 billion a month more than it anticipated in January. This factor, by itself, could reduce the current fiscal year deficit by about $5 billion.

In January, the Nixon administration estimated the government would end up $38.8 billion in the red at the end of the current fiscal year, Jan. 30.

But officials said Friday the budget deficit will run much lower than that.

Although the Office of Management and Budget has yet to come up with a new estimate, it now appears the deficit may prove to be $6 billion to $8 billion less than the January estimate.

President Nixon's budget could prove to be pretty close to balanced on a full-employment basis if the money keeps coming into the Treasury at the increased rate.

A full-employment budget puts expenditures at the level of revenues that would be produced if the economy were operating at high prosperity, which it isn't.

When Nixon disclosed the expected deficit in January, he said the budget would be in the red by about $8 billion on a full-employment basis.

Besides the overwithholding, officials said, expenditures that are turning out to be less than anticipated could cut the deficit. They could offer no figures.

No officials could explain why taxpayers are not adjusting their withholding in accordance with the tables that went into effect Jan. 16.

Secret Accounts to Be Checked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans planning a trip abroad after July 1 will be required to make a special report to the Customs Bureau if they will carry more than $5,000 in currency or checks out of the United States.

The Treasury Department said Thursday it will post signs at customs points to inform travelers what is required.

Treasury announced the requirement in final regulations under a 1970 law designed to detect criminal activity in secret foreign bank accounts.

The $5,000 requirement is only one of many provisions in the regulations, which establish extensive reporting and record-keeping rules for the nation's financial institutions.

Samuel R. Pierce, the department's chief attorney, denied, however, that the United States is moving toward exchange controls which are common in

Civilians for KP Duty

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's plan to do away with KP in "the new volunteer Army" by hiring civilians for the job has run into fire from some key congressmen. They say the money could be better spent elsewhere.

A House Appropriations Committee spokesman says several members have expressed doubts over the Army's request for $99 million in next year's budget to make permanent its experiment of replacing soldiers with civilian kitchen policemen, or KPs.

This has been one of the Army's key selling points in its campaign to recruit an all-volunteer force.

The committee spokesman said some members feel "that's a lot of money and a big departure from the way the Army has always done business."

In hearings with top Army leaders over the past several weeks, the spokesman said, some committee members questioned whether the money could be spent "on cancer research or even a new tank."

Other members, some of whom pulled KP in their Army days, suggested the troops might be better off keeping busy by peeling potatoes and washing dishes "than smoking marijuana," the spokesman said.

In response, the Army has gathered ammunition from its top field commanders for a counterattack to impress upon the committee the importance of the KP-replacement program to boost troop morale.

Gen. Michael S. Davison, the Army's commander in Europe, says keeping KP as part of a GI's duty "would be to renege on a promise and to undercut progress toward the modern volunteer Army."

The general said that by hiring civilians in Europe the Army has been able to return 3,500 soldiers to their primary duty. "This equates to more than four mechanized infantry battalions," he said.

Davison's comments and those from several other generals were released by the Army after being extracted from periodic reports by the commanders evaluating progress in the volunteer-Army campaign.

Gen. Ralph Haines, commander of the Continental Army Command, called KP the most "onerous and counterproductive task" and said the troops believe that "society is intelligent enough to recognize that soldiers have more to learn from their squad leader than their mess steward."

The regulations also say that any time a transfer of $5,000 or more from the United States takes place, either by mail or shipment or physical transport, a report must be made to the government. In addition, a person who receives $5,000 from a foreign country is required to make a report giving details of where it came from and who sent it if no other report has been made to the U.S. government.

The rules, effective July 1,

Tony Boyle Found Guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers president W. A. "Tony" Boyle has been convicted of illegally using union funds in the first federal prosecution of a labor leader for making unlawful campaign contributions.

A U.S. District Court jury returned guilty verdicts against Boyle Friday on each of 13 counts in an indictment that charged him with heading a conspiracy to spread $49,250 in union funds among Democrats and Republicans in the last half of the 1960's.

Two other officials of the union, secretary-treasurer John Owens, 81, and chief lobbyist James Kmetz, 47, were found innocent.

An appeal was expected for Boyle, whose conviction could ban him from union office, send him to prison for a total of 32 years and cost him $120,000 in fines.

Boyle was released on a personal recognizance bond pending sentencing for which no date has been set.

The 67-year-old union chief only shook his head in tight-lipped silence when asked for his reaction to the outcome.

The two-week criminal trial was only one of the court attacks against Boyle's leadership of the nearly 200,000-member union. Still to come is a decision on a Labor Department suit which seeks to overturn his 1969 re-election as union president over an insurgent candidate, the late Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski.

Still another suit, also awaiting decision, could strip Boyle of his present power to appoint the heads of districts which make up the union.

The 13 counts charged Boyle with conspiring to use union funds for campaign contributions, with making 11 such contributions and with converting $5,000 in union funds for use in one of the contributions.

The largest single amount in the indictment was a $30,000 contribution to a 1968 dinner promoting Sen. Hubert Humphrey's presidential candidacy.

Thompson Is Candidate

MARKED TREE, Ark. (AP) — Bill Thompson of Fort Smith, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said Thursday legislation was needed to keep habitual criminals "off the streets and behind bars."

Speaking to the Lions Club here, Thompson said one of the greatest threats was the inability of courts under present law to end a criminal case after a man has been convicted and the conviction has been affirmed.

Thompson said the Criminal Code Revision Committee, of which he is a member, was attempting to correct the problem.

Butchers With Old Tools

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. (AP) — Using only tools employed by primitive man hundreds of years ago, state Archeologist George Frison butchered an 11-year-old bison cow at Hot Springs State Park.

Frison said the test of whether the tools found in archaeological digs could be used for buffalo slaughter was "a very successful undertaking."

He said the project confirmed many hypotheses about the use of bone and crude stone tools in slaughtering by Indians some 400 to 1,000 years ago in Wyoming.

LEWIS & CLARK expedition

MEN WHO SERVED THEIR COUNTRY WELL

The Louisiana Purchase of 1803 added a vast new territory to the United States. Most of this 919,039 square miles had not even been explored. President Thomas Jefferson sent the Lewis and Clark Expedition to find out what the newly acquired region was like.

Starting at St. Louis in May 1804, Lewis and Clark started up the Missouri in flatboats. Their budget for this history-making event was $2,500.

The courageous party of the two leaders, 26 soldiers, 2 interpreters and a negro servant journeyed through the vast wilderness until they reached the "Pacific Ocean" 18 months later.

The Lewis and Clark Expedition encountered every hardship known . . . and as one account says that the travelers lacked "every necessity but that gallant spirit with which each member of the party was so well endowed."

Arriving in St. Louis in September 1806, the Expedition had covered 9,000 miles in 27 months . . . opened up the way of trade and settlement, and gave the United States a strong claim to the Oregon Territory against the rival claim of England.

These men knew the true spirit that helped make America great!

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With cautious optimism, leaders of the film industry are beginning to talk about a possible end to the long depression that has plagued Hollywood.

"It may be too early to cite a trend," commented one studio chief, "but I think we're beginning to see sunlight."

Nothing buys local morale like an all-out smash hit. Paramount has one in "The Godfather."

Theater grosses for "The Godfather" have been not only record-breaking, but breathtaking: nearly $500,000 in the first week at five New York City theaters; $250,000 in two Los Angeles theaters on one week; $75,000 for one week at a Buena Park, Calif. drive-in.

Said a Paramount spokesman: "There's no doubt that 'The Godfather' will replace 'Gone with the Wind' as the all time top money-maker. The top three grossers are 'Gone with the Wind,' 'The Sound of Music' and 'Love Story.' By comparing our records, we can see that 'The Godfather' is far eclipsing 'Love Story' receipts."

Such a performance is not only good for Paramount, it helps the entire industry. The late David O. Selznick, producer of "Gone with the Wind," once remarked:

"A big hit helps everybody in the movie business. It stirs talk and gets people back into the habit of going to theaters."

Other new films are scoring with filmgoers: "What's Up, Doc?" a hilarious, G-rated return to the wacky comedies of the 1930s; "Cabaret," a diamond-hard view of life in pre-Hitler Berlin; "Silent Running," a science-fiction film which may be this year's "Willard."

Many of the strong 1971 releases are still drawing well: "Fiddler on the Roof," "Dirty Harry," "The Last Picture Show," "The French Connection," "A Clockwork Orange," "Diamonds are Forever," "Nicholas and Alexandra."

One or more of these films will draw additional impetus by winning Academy awards April 10.

It is not only the jangle of box-office money that has brought the new fund optimism. For the first time in five years, most of the film companies appear to have their finances under control.

More careful management has resulted in a startling turnaround of balance sheets. United Artists and 20th Century-Fox showed profits in 1971 compared with heavy losses the year before.

MGM showed a substantially increased net income for fiscal 1971 against 1970 and a loss in 1969.

Unlike other recent years, no major film company appeared in dire trouble in 1972.

To Greta Garbo and Joan Crawford, "topper" is the short coat that they wore in the '40s or '50s over their flowing trouser pants.

To any girl in her late 20s or early 30s, "topper" means the covering she wore over her formal to proms and dances.

To 1972 the "topper" will be the most important new fashion in coats. What the blazer was to 1971, the topper will be to 1972, and probably even stronger, for just about anyone can and will wear a topper. It is softer and more feminine than a blazer and well-suited to almost all other ready-to-wear fashions.

Get ready for the topper suit. All educated fashion guesses point to the dawning of a suit era. Suits haven't been a popular fashion in more than a decade. So the time is right. Everyone who wore a blazer during the last year was indicating to manufacturers that she is ready for suits. But a suit does not necessarily mean a matching top and bottom. Contrasting colors, and solids and patterns mixed together are what suits say today.

Nat Hirsch, designer for Junior Gallery, has nothing in his collection that will remind him or anyone else of the suits that used to be the dull inhabitants of suit departments. Instead he sees the topper and the long skirt being a suit. Ditto for the topper and a dress or a short skirt.

Will Success End A Cop's Career?

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—It begins to look as though Joseph Wambaugh can't be both a cop and a writer.

He managed to combine the two careers while he wrote "The New Centurions" and his just-published "The Blue Knight." But he says he can't do both any more.

"The demands of being an author are just too much," Wambaugh says. There are letters to be answered, investments (he's made a lot of money on his two books) to be tended to, and such details as helping the Japanese translator of "The New Centurions" find the right words for his slang.

"Between all that and a full-time job as a policeman," Wambaugh says, "I just can't find the time to write another book. I want to write more books. My wife and my publisher both want me to quit the force but I still like police work."

As it is, Wambaugh is living in two worlds. As a successful author and a member in good standing of the literary community, he mingles with people like Truman Capote. Simultaneously, as a policeman, he is part of the admittedly sleazy world he associates with in that work.

"I have to have a command of two separate languages," he says, "and the people I talk to in one world don't understand the language of the other."

Now there is a third world intruding—the world of movies. He's been hanging around the set where they're making the movie version of "The New Centurions" which stars George C. Scott and Stacy Keach.

He's enjoying that, too, but he doesn't want to be a part of it. He will not, for instance, write the screen play for "The Blue Knight," when that inevitably becomes a movie.

"I saw what Stirling Silliphant went through," he says, "when he did the 'Centurions' screen play. He wrote the drafts and then he quit and they had to bring in somebody else to do another one."

"The Blue Knight," Wambaugh's latest novel, is what reviewers believe, superior to his first novel. It tells the story of one man—a 50-year-old, 275-pound policeman who is three days from retirement. Casting that part as his favorite game these days.

Bill Conrad's name comes up most often. Wambaugh says, "but I've also heard them mention Marlon Brando. I sort of like the idea of Asner or the Mary Tyler Moore Show."

Wambaugh's life style has changed since he made his money.

"Nowadays I buy suits retail," he says, "I don't go to a clothing store with Dick this police partner. I go to a store who has an acting role in 'Centurions' and they sell me shirts and suits and paid retail and Dick was asking me to buy them."

"Cops just don't do that—cops always take a job to get out of the stuff. We used to have this and that come around to the station house with a suit and a pair of pants. Lots of times one street was better than another, but it was all right."

Wambaugh wrote a pilot for a television series called "Head Hunters." He sold it to a network, but the network didn't sell it to the networks.

Not many would touch it, he says. "The show was too controversial because it was too honest."

The show will one day revert back to a comedy, he thinks. They'll fix it again. But that's the way it will be made ready, but it.

The Generation Gap

Time to Forget Family Hassles

DEAR RAB:

My nephew is graduating in June from high school and I am planning a family party for him. My sister (his mother) doesn't have a big enough house.

She is divorced from the boy's father and still bitter. She insists that only he (her ex) can get an invitation to graduation services (and my party), but not his wife. Of course he won't come under those circumstances.

I hear the wife is a lovely person—and she didn't break up the marriage, but met him afterwards. The son thinks a lot of them both.

Is it ever proper to invite one of a couple and not both? My sister is making it so that her son's father won't see him graduated and I think this is a terrible shame. Don't you? —CAUGHT IN THE CROSSFIRE

DEAR CAUGHT:

We do. We do!

The graduation invitation should read "Mr. and Mrs. . . ." As for the party afterwards, the couple will probably make no more than a token appearance, so why hassle it?

If your sister argues, tell her it's her son's special evening—and he should decide who gets invitations. She can't fault that! —HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My sister is into this natural beauty-helps trip. You never know whether what's in the refrigerator is something for her face, or my stomach.

A guy wrote about his wife, who smeared herself with avocado. My sister even rubs it into her hair - along with beaten eggs. And then she rinses it with beer. Which I'd rather drink!

Now it's cornmeal. She washed her face in it, spilling it all over the bathroom. Gritty floors and scratchy soap I don't buy!

What's your opinion of this "back to nature" stuff, you two? —BROTHER

HELEN SAYS:

I lump "natural beauty aids" and organic health foods in the same bag—and figure it's filled with at least 50 per cent hot air.

These back-to-nature things make people feel worthy because they must work so much harder for results. But they don't produce miracles: Users seldom become appreciably more beautiful, vibrant, healthy, glowing—all those goodies true believers promise. —HELEN SUE'S VIEWS:

I can't believe it: My mother, the world's greatest "Try it, you might like it" tester, going lukewarm on experiments! Look, Ma, you never followed a recipe or read a pattern instruction sheet in your life, so give the "naturals" a chance.

A cornmeal facial is great for oil skin and it might help remove blackheads too. Egg, lemon, avocado, bananas, etc., may not turn a dog into a fox, but they do a job on hair and complexion. And beauty operators use beer for rinses.

These aids are cheap, fun, and besides, anything close to nature can't hurt you. —SUE

LAST WORD FROM HELEN: . . .

Unless "Sis" gets cornmeal in her eye—or spills it in her brother's beer. Look, kid, I know several things close to nature which can hurt you. That's why I caution, "Don't go all out on trendy stuff, even though experiments are fun."

LAST WORD FROM SUE:

Okay, Mother dear, I promise never to recommend poison ivy baths if you'll try a tomato puree-and-avocado facial. 'K? LAST GASP FROM HELEN: Couldn't I eat it on a piece of toast? —H.

Mixed Up People

THE ABSENCE OF BELLS
By Michael Rubin McGraw-Hill $6.95

The tortured heroine of this novel is a young woman who is so surrounded by analysts that it is a wonder she retains a semblance of sanity.

Her name is Lynn. She has had a "breakdown" and is getting treatment from a head-shrinker. Her husband, an industrial psychologist, also has his problems, but his unbearable contribution to Lynn's condition is that he makes such a production out of "understanding" her. Their son is at a private school that lets the kid analyze everyone in sight, and he "understands" her too, or thinks he does.

Poor, trapped, neurotic Lynn meets Donald, and they have a sordid affair. Donald is too dull to be neurotic, but he is trapped too, by a dead-end job, a nagging, alcoholic mother who fills his bachelor life with exhortations to obey her church, and by the deadening patterns of his life.

Lynn and Donald's grubby little sexual affair leads them to an escape through flight to a grotesque old house on Cape Cod. But even there Lynn keeps analyzing herself and even Donald tries his hand at guessing what goes on between them. Inevitably, their affair breaks up.

This sort of novel is all right for those who fret about psychological tricks, and for those who take seriously the jargon of the analysts.

Select Power Equipment With Care

By Sheila & Allan Swenson
Get "powerful" this year around your home and garden. It saves your back, lets you enjoy living more and still have a garden and lawn that's the envy of the neighborhood.

Our choice for the most important piece of power, after a lawn mower, of course, is a power tiller. These walking wonders earn their cost every year. We have tested the best recommended tillers. Some are excellent, others should be scrapped. Insist on a power tiller demonstration before you buy. Check forward and reverse gears, turning ability and depth of tillability. Then look over the power and motor guarantee.

When you decide to grind up brush, leaves, garden trash for more organic gardening, another good investment is a power grinder-shredder. Several excellent brands are on the market and have been for many years. Watch out for the new consumer manufacturers that are trying to cash in on what they see as the organic trend. As there are good garden tractors and imitators, so are there good and not-so-good shredders and grinders.

Be certain the product has the power to do the job you want done. If you will be grinding twigs and small brush, insist on sufficient horsepower. Be certain that engine, belts and drive are all shielded for safe use.

Shredder-grinders can throw back bits of brush, gravel in soil on plant roots and other debris. Feed these useful monsters with care: keep youngsters away!

When you shop for power equipment, you can visit garden centers, discount stores, special tractor and equipment outlets. Many brands are available with many capabilities.

Here's a simple tip. The standard of comparison is Sears. You can find sound, basic garden equipment of good value there. If you need extras, look around. If you want bargains, keep shopping. But good basic power equipment to make your gardening easier is as available as your need, budget and comparison shopping ability.

Baseball Players Vote to Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Four days before the scheduled start of the 1972 season, major league baseball players were set to begin an unprecedented strike today over a pension dispute while representatives of both sides were to get together to discuss the situation.

Officially, the strike began at 12:01 a.m. but the first results would not be felt until the players failed to show up for the 12 exhibition games on today's schedule.

Many players and owners alike seemed stunned when the 24 player representatives and their alternates voted 47-0 with one abstention—later identified as Wes Parker of the Los Angeles Dodgers—at a meeting in Dallas, Friday to call a walkout.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said the strike would be terminated only "in either of the following circumstances:

"1. If an appropriate settlement is reached with the owners or,

"2. If the owners agree to submit the dispute to binding arbitration by any prominent person not associated with either of the parties."

There didn't seem to be much chance of the latter when Francis Dale, president of the Cincinnati Reds and a member of the owners' Player Relations Committee, said, "We aren't going to turn to some outsider who doesn't know the game."

After the 4½-hour Dallas meeting, Miller headed for New York and a meeting today—time and place still undetermined—with John Gaherin, representing the owners.

The issue centers around the owners' one-and-only offer to increase the health care part of the players' pension package by $400,000.

The players want a 17 per cent increase, which Miller says could be met by an additional contribution from each of the 24 major league teams of less than $11,000. They also want a four-year agreement, but will settle for a one-year pact.

If the strike is not settled by Wednesday, it will mean at the very least a delay in opening the season. Houston is scheduled at Cincinnati in Wednesday's official opener, with 16 more teams slated to get under way Thursday and the rest on Friday.

"I can't believe it," said Danny Cater, a player with the Boston Red Sox.

"I'm sick," said Stu Holcomb, a vice president with the Chicago White Sox.

The two opposites presented the same pained reaction Friday after the Major League Baseball Players Association announced an intended strike against the owners.

The association announced the strike, starting today in every spring training camp, after reaching an impasse with owners over contract talks. The players want a hefty increase in their pension plan.

"I think the players are damn greedy," said Jim Campbell, the general manager of the Detroit Tigers.

Holcomb said that the White Sox are "closing up."

"There will be no more practice sessions, no games, no ticket sales, no nothing," said Holcomb, bitterly.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — UCLA center Bill Walton is the lone unanimous choice on the NEA 1972 All-American basketball team.

The team was announced jointly today by Newspaper Enterprise Assn. and the National Basketball Association. The 17 NBA coaches were polled for their selections.

Bob McAdoo of North Carolina and Bud Stallworth of Kansas are the forwards; Dwight Lamar of Southwest Louisiana and Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State are the guards.

Walton is the youngest (19-year-old sophomore) and the tallest (6-11). Stallworth is the only senior.

A rarity on this team is that two of the players, Ratleff and Lamar, are from the same home town, Columbus, Ohio.

"I've never seen a player who makes the outlet pass and starts the fast break as well," says John Wooden, UCLA's basketball coach, of Walton.

Stallworth, the only senior on the first team, finished his career as the seventh highest scorer in Big Eight Conference history. He originally thought he would be a trumpeter in the Kansas band but one afternoon he engaged in a pickup game with Jo Jo White, then a Kansas star, now a Boston Celtics' All-Star. White told coach Ted Owens, who scouted Stallworth and convinced him to let Kansas fans do the tooting.

Ratleff has been called by one NBA general manager the most complete guard since Jerry West and Oscar Robertson. Lamar has been one of the nation's scoring leaders all season.

McAdoo, a strong leaper, rebounder and shooter, helped the Tar Heels win the Atlantic Coast Conference title, the ACC tournament, and another bid to the NCAA Tournament.

The NBA coaches, who picked the five best collegians regardless of position or class, named six players to the second team because of a tie—Barry Parkhill of Virginia, Bill Chamberlain of North Carolina, Fred Boyd of Oregon State, Jim Chones of Marquette, and a tie between Brian Taylor, Princeton and Steve Hawes of Washington.

Sees Improvement?

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles have won 318 regular season games and nine straight in the playoffs while sweeping to three straight American League pennants.

For 1972, Manager Earl Weaver sees likely improvement for the Orioles.

"There's no reason we should be any worse," Weaver said,

Classes Cut for Horses

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Many a college student has cut classes for a day at the races, but for 18-year-old Peggy Skidmore, a stop at Keeneland Race Track on her way to the University of Kentucky is all in a day's routine.

"The track world is something you can't begin to picture until you become part of it," said the freshman, an animal science major who has worked in the barn area at Keeneland for the past eight months.

During the off-season, she is one of the few girls working at the track as well as one of the youngest. The job came naturally to her, since she has owned a horse for years.

"Right now I'm walking 'hots' (cooling off horses after a workout)," she said. "but I have done some jogging in the stable. I really hope to be able to gallop by summer."

Peggy said there usually are more girls than boys working around the horses during the season.

"Most of us just love horses," she said in explaining why young people such as herself choose to work at the track.

"Many of the kids have never had the chance to work with them."

"Every once in a while someone comes out that thinks it is all fun and games, but they soon learn that it takes hard work and lots of it to do anything right with horses."

Peggy reports to the track at 6 a.m. seven days a week. A couple of times last winter when the temperature fell below zero she had to dash into the heated tack room after working with each horse just to keep from getting numb.

"We all did," she said. "the exercise boys, groomers, trainers and all, so I didn't feel like I was soft."

Peggy's parents were worried at first about her working with high-strung horses. To date, however, she has been injured only once.

"It was the type of thing that could happen with any horse," she said. "I was leading a horse in his stall and he shed. I hit the door jamb and cracked two ribs. Other than that I haven't received any injuries."

"and chances are we'll be better."

Dave McNally, one of four Baltimore 20-game winners last year, was out of action 38 days. Boog Powell, the league's Most Valuable Player of 1970, hit below his weight at .256. Paul Blair, off to a slow start, managed to hit just .262.

Weaver, always optimistic and aggressive, doesn't expect such misfortune again.

The Orioles never won a pennant until outfielder Frank Robinson arrived, and then they won four in six seasons. But Robinson was dealt off to the Los Angeles Dodgers. So the rest of the team is on its own.

Baltimore, never known for standing pat, could open the season with seven newcomers on the 25-man roster, including five rookies up from Rochester.

They include infielder Bobby Grich, who hit .383 and .336 the past two years, and outfielder Don Baylor, .327 and .313 the last two seasons. Both are labeled as "can't miss" prospects.

Also moving up from a productive farm system are Roric Harrison, 15-5, and reliever Mickey Scott, 9-1, and catcher Johnny Oates.

Moving to Baltimore in the Robinson trade are Doyle Alexander, 6-6 with Los Angeles, and reliever Bob O'Brien.

At the start, at least, Baylor and Grich are slated for spot duty behind veteran units in the outfield and infield.

Don Buford, Blair and Merv Rettenmund, the club's leading hitter the past two years, form the outfield. Baylor, Tom Shopay and Terry Crowley will be the reserves.

Ellie Hendricks and Andy Etchebarren will again be platooned at catcher. They combined for 71 RBI last year.

The incomparable Brooks Robinson at third anchors the infield which includes shortstop Mark Belanger, second baseman Dave Johnson and Powell at first. All but Powell won Golden Glove fielding awards in 1971.

Either Chico Salmon or Jerry DaVanon will join Grich in the backup role for the infield, with the loser being dealt off.

The pitching rotation of McNally, Jim Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Pat Dobson won 81 games last year and started 143 times with 71 complete games.

As a result, the bullpen didn't get much work and wasn't too effective much of the time.

Of that group, Pete Richert went to the Dodgers, Dick Hall retired and Tom Dukes, 1-5, appeared on shaky ground as spring training progressed.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson flashes a big smile when it comes to his young pitching staff, especially the starters.

Pitching has been one of the few things the Reds have had to boast about this spring while the club has registered one of the poorest exhibition records.

Just how strong the pitching staff is, whether such a player as Johnny Bench can come back from a poor season in 1971, and whether Bobby Tolan can return effectively from an Achilles tendon injury, will determine the Reds fate in the National League West division.

Anderson, who has cracked down on curfew and weight regulations this season, says that the hurlers are "much better than in 1970 when we won the pennant. It's not even close. I'd say 25 to 30 per cent better."

The Reds swept the West Division by 14½ games in 1970 and defeated Pittsburgh in the playoffs for the pennant.

The Reds starting rotation consists of Don Gullett, 21; Ross Grimsley, 22; Gary Nolan, 23; Wayne Simpson, 23, and Jim Merritt, 28. Jim McGlothlin, a starter last year, and Jack Billingham, picked up from Houston in a trade, will handle long relief work. The short relievers will include newly acquired Tom Hall and veteran Clay Carroll.

Gullett paced the staff last year with a 16-6 mark and 2.64 earned run average. Simpson, who was 14-3 in his rookie year in 1970, and Merritt, 20-12 in 1970, both were bothered by arm trouble in 1971, but appear to have recovered completely.

"I believe they're through with their arm problems, but I don't even want to think about it," Anderson said.

That performance followed a 40-homer and 129-RBI output in 1970.

Perez has lost about 13 pounds, from 208 to 195 this year, and says, "I feel stronger."

Tolan sat out the entire 1971 season. He led the major leagues in stolen bases in 1970 with 57, and batted .316. His base stealing has been attributed as part of the reason Bench and Perez had such good seasons in 1970.

Tolan didn't play in his first spring training game until March 14, but has vowed "to be in center field opening day."

With speed in mind, General Manager Robert Howsman engineered an eight-player deal with Houston over the winter and obtained five players, including second baseman Joe Morgan. Morgan has stolen 40 or more bases the last three seasons.

Morgan is part of a new infield the Reds are unveiling this year. Perez will move from third to first to replace slugger Lee May who went to Houston. Denis Menke, picked up from the Astros, will be at third. Darrell Chaney and Dave Concepcion will share the shortstop job left open when veteran Woody Woodward retired.

Pete Rose, who hit .304 last year, will be in left field, Tolan in center and George Foster in right.
